WELCOME TO SELF-CARE FOR PARENTS

SPECIAL NEEDS
EMPOWERMENT COACH

JHF

Thank you for joining me today. As parents, we often find ourselves juggling numerous responsibilities—managing household tasks, coordinating activities for our children, and balancing work commitments, all while trying to maintain some sense of personal well-being. It’s a joyful time in life, but it can also stretch our limits, sometimes leaving us feeling depleted.

This is why self-care is not just a luxury—it is essential. Today, I want to share practical steps and strategies that can help us, as parents, create and sustain a self-care routine that supports our mental, physical, and emotional health. My goal is for each of us to leave here not just with a plan, but with the motivation to implement it. Because taking care of yourself is not just about surviving; it’s about thriving, enabling you to enjoy these precious moments with your family to the fullest.

So, let’s get started and explore how we can build resilience through a tailored self-care plan that adapts to our unique needs and life circumstances.

INITIAL QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER BEFORE STARTING:

How do you currently manage your self-care?

What are your biggest challenges currently?

ASSESSING YOUR NEEDS

Where in your life do you feel you may be neglecting your own needs?

PHYSICAL

- Exercise
- Nourishing Foods
- Rest/Sleep
- Hydration
- Time Outdoors
- Other

EMOTIONAL

- Expression
- Healthy Coping
- Being Present
- Mindset
- Self-Compassion
- Other

SOCIAL

- Support Network
- Time With Partner
- Engaging in Hobbies
- Practicing Kindness
- Meeting Friends
- Other

Reflection Questions:

What area do you find yourself neglecting most in terms of self-care: physical, emotional, social?

What is one thing you can commit to – even if it is small – to start a DAILY self-care practice or habit?

Download an app to help you track your wellness if this feels overwhelming to you.

SETTING ATTAINABLE GOALS

Use this SMART template to fill in a goal you have related to self-care:

Specific Measurable
Achievable
Relevant
Timely

Reflection Question:

List 5 steps (no matter how small) that you can take to improve your level of self-care:

CREATING A ROUTINE

Use the space below to brainstorm daily practices that you feel would be beneficial, accessible, and attainable.

Daily Practices:

Do the same for weekly goals - something you can do every _____ (day of the week) to make your week go smoother. Example: Meal prep healthy breakfasts for the week on a Sunday

BUILDING IN FLEXIBILITY

Use this table to give some thought to how you can be flexible when things don't go exactly as you planned them. Use this first column for primary activities and the second column for what a back-up plan could be if something changes.

Primary:

Back-Up:

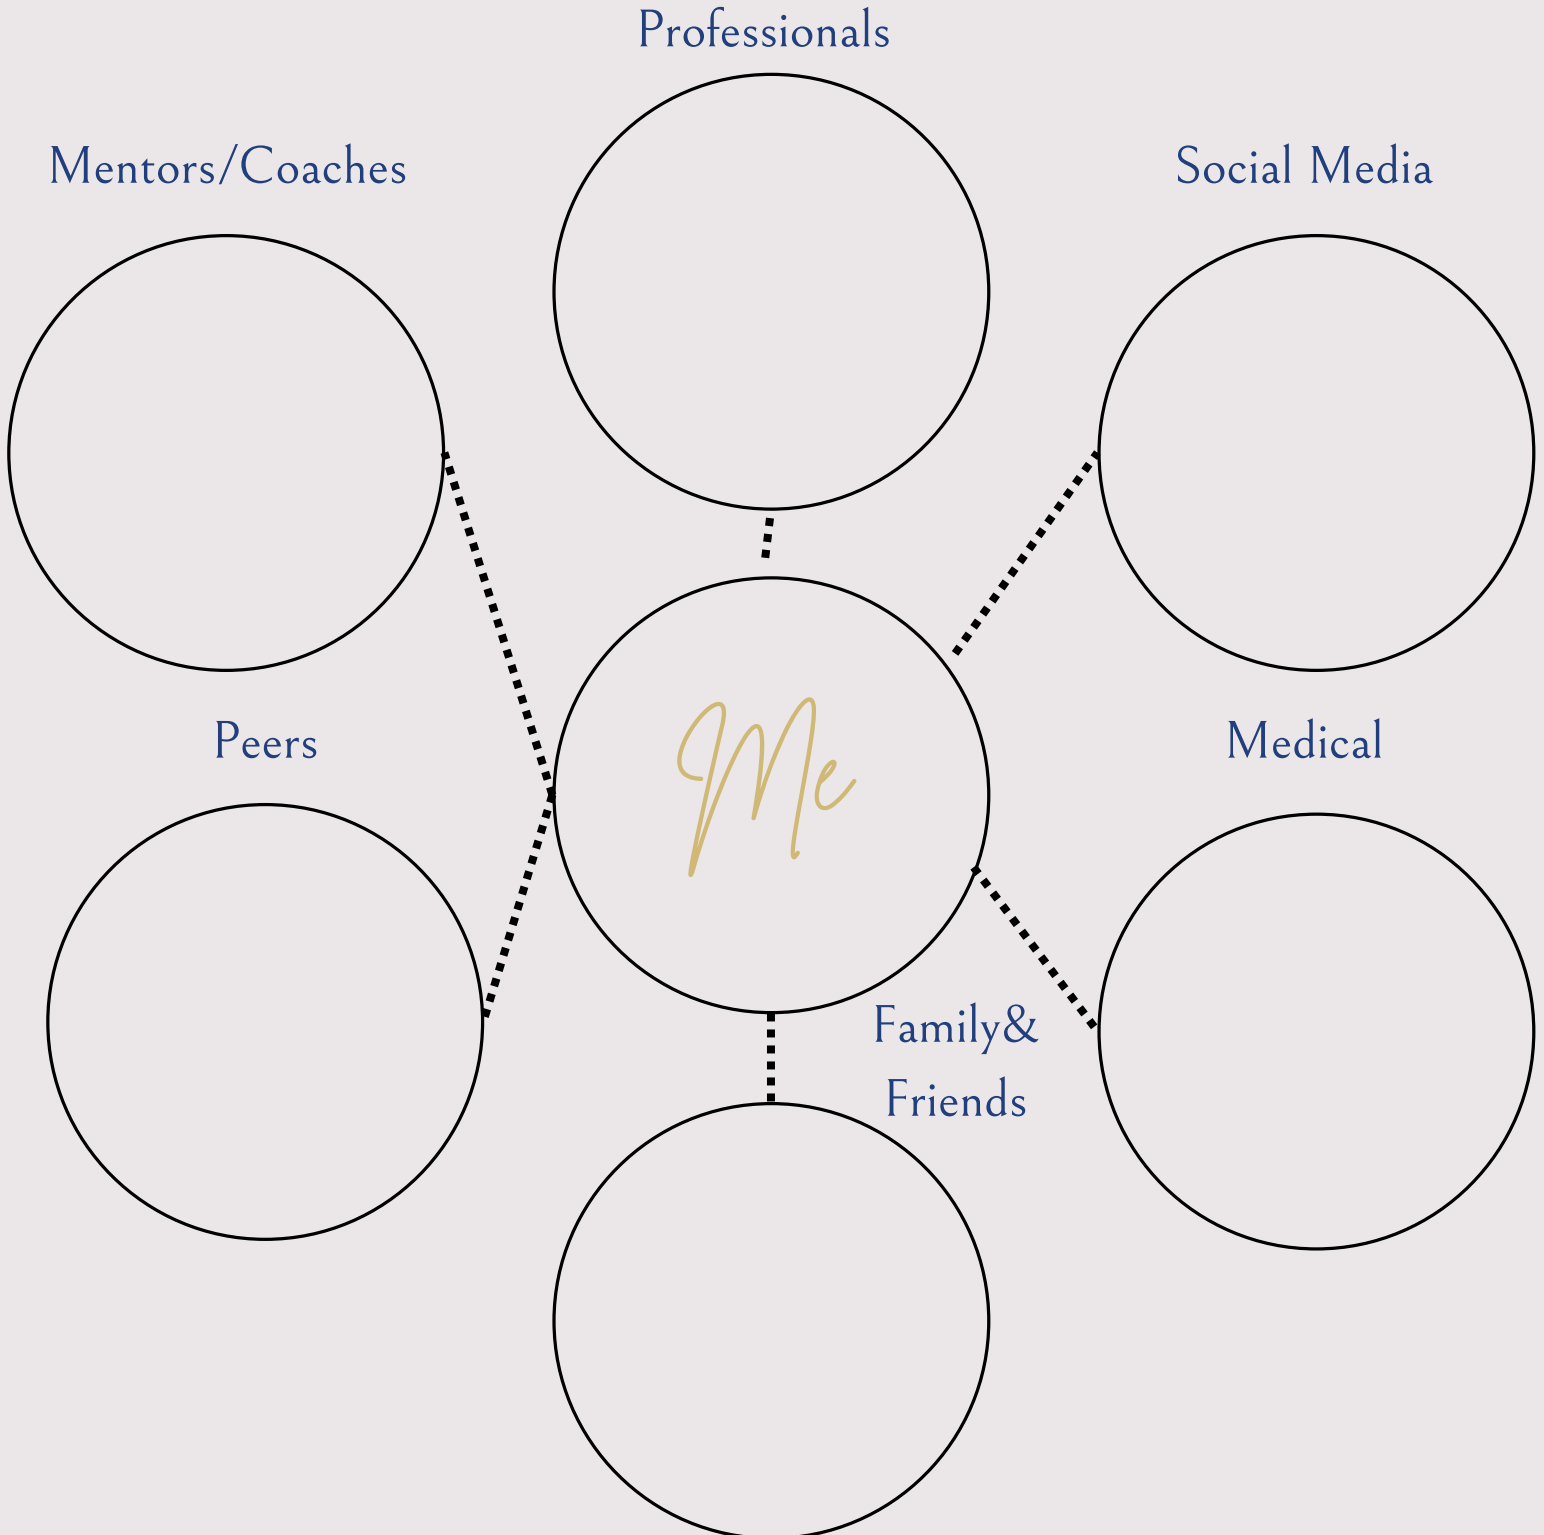

Reflection Questions:

How can you adapt your self-care plans to unexpected changes?

How often should you review and adjust your goals?

ENLISTING SUPPORT

Fill in this map to see where you have support and where you need to work on getting support. Added bonus? Color code it so your in-person support is represented in one color and your online or virtual support is represented in another.

MONITORING PROGRESS & CELEBRATING SUCCESS

Write down 5 ways you could celebrate achieving your self-care goals:
(TIP: some small celebrations and 1-2 BIG celebrations you can save for huge achievements)

If you are old school and prefer to log successes on pen/paper as opposed to an app – check out the monthly calendar tracker on the next page. Print it out and hang it on your fridge or somewhere you can see it everyday.

RESOURCE CHECKLIST

In a perfect world - place a check next to all the places/areas in your life that you feel like you could use help or support. From there, create a checklist of the top 5 priority resources that you will add to your network over the next month. Check them off as you find a resource and initiate a connection with them.

THANK YOU!

I invite each of you to commit to your self-care journey. Start by setting one attainable self-care goal today and share it with a partner or friend for accountability.

Whether it's scheduling a daily 10-minute walk, joining a support group, or simply ensuring you drink enough water, every small step is a step towards a healthier, more fulfilled you.

Together, let's make this life not just manageable but enjoyable, with renewed energy and optimism.
